EASTERN DATES TO MAY 1.

THE CIVIL WAR IN FRANCE.

Fighting still Going On.

PARIS, May 15.—The Versailles forces are under the walls of Paris, exchanging shot with the insurgents who have ramparts from the arrondissement of Passy to Porte de Issy. The Parisians have been expelled from the trenches between Asnieres and Issy. A battery has been erected in the garden of the Tuileries to pour a flank fire into Champs Elysees.

There is undoubted evidence that a wide spread conspiracy exists in Paris for the overthrow of the Commune.

The Gardens of Luxemburg are closed to the public and are occupied by a military force in anticipation of a rising on the part of the populace.

The British Parliament.

LONDON May 15.—In the House of Commons to night Viscount Enfield, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs said the Government was not prepared to state the exact terms of the treaty of Washington, as a copy of the document had not yet been received.

Disraeli therefore postponed putting the question to the Government in relation thereto of which he had previously given notice.

Gladstone stated that the Government was unable to anticipate the exact time of the arrival of the treaty but promised that it should instantly be submitted to Parliament.

In the House of Lords Earl Russell gave notice of his intention to move an address to the Queen against sanctioning the ratification of the Washington treaty in case—[Here the line broke.]

Enforcement of the Fourteenth Amendment.

EXTRACT FROM THE SPEECH OF HON. JAMES B. BECK OF KENTUCKY IN THE HOUSE ON THE 5TH APRIL 1871.

Mr. Speaker: Is there any one who believes that were this thing reversed and these outrages which are being committed upon the friends of the Administration in the Southern States were being committed upon Democrats in Democratic States—with a Democratic majority in both branches of Congress, a Democratic President and an army and navy on their hands—that a Democratic Congress would fail to find constitutional warrant for extending protection to their friends although the State authorities through weakness, treachery or cowardice should fail to call for assistance from the General Government? The whole history of that party forbids such a proposition. In all their days of power they gave us a precedent which is sufficient justification for the vote I shall give on this bill and such amendments as may be offered. Is there any gentleman on the Democratic side of this House who is willing to admit that the fugitive slave law of 1850 was unconstitutional? I do not believe there is and so can I speak for much of the South, I am willing to take that law and enlarge its work in such a way as to make the rights and privileges to be protected those of loyal men and true American citizens instead of the class of law-breakers. I find in it all the protection which loyal citizens of the South would find from the Government, which owes us the full protection it knows in extent.

The constitutionality of such a law could not be questioned for it was affirmed in 1850 by the entire Democratic party and by the united and solid vote of that party on this floor, forced through this House under the operation of the previous question, no opportunity for debate or amendment being permitted by the then Democratic majority. Its constitutionality was immaterial and affirmed by the party that made it as long as they continued in power and affirmed again and again by the United States courts then presided over by Democratic judges. I ask are to call the attention of the House to the remarkable provisions of this constitutional Democratic law—this act entitled "An act to amend" etc commonly known as the fugitive slave law which passed in this House in September 1850 having previously passed in the Senate. Its first section provides for the appointment of commissioners by the Circuit Courts to execute the powers and duties prescribed by the act. Section three provides that the number of these commissioners should be extended at the discretion of the court and any number appointed that might be deemed necessary in carrying out the provisions of the act.

Section four confers such remarkable and extraordinary powers upon these commissioners that I quote it in full

"And be it further enacted, That the courts mentioned above named shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the judges of the circuit and District Courts of the United States in their respective circuits and districts within the several States and the judges of the supreme courts of the Territories, severally and circuit by virtue of this act, and shall grant certificates to such claimants upon satisfactory proof being made with authority to take and remove such fugitives from service or labor to the State or Territory from which such person may have escaped or fled.

Section five prescribes the duties of marshals who may have any number of deputies and prescribes penalties should they refuse to obey or execute all warrants or precepts issued under the provisions of this act when to them directed and also fines liable to the full value of any slave that may escape from their custody after arrest, and in language which I will give as it appears in the section confers still more remarkable powers upon the commissioners.

I quote from the section

"And the better to enable the said commissioners, when thus appointed to execute their duties faithfully and efficiently, in conformity with the requirements of the Constitution of the United States and of this act they are hereby authorized and empowered within their counties respectively to appoint in writing, under their hands any or more suitable persons from time to time to execute all such warrants and other process as may be issued by them in the lawful performance of their respective duties with authority to such commissioners or the persons to be appointed by them to execute process as aforesaid to summon and call to their aid the by-standers or posse comitatus of the proper county when necessary to insure a faithful observance of the provisions of this act and all good citizens are hereby commanded to aid and assist in the prompt and efficient execution of this law whenever their services may be required, as aforesaid, for that purpose and said warrant shall run and be executed by said officers anywhere in the State within which they are issued."

Section seven imposes a fine and imprisonment on any person who shall willingly hinder the arrest of a fugitive or shall rescue or attempt to rescue from custody or harbor or aid to escape any fugitive from slavery.

Section nine provides that when the claimant or his agent apprehend a rescue the officer making the arrest is to remove the fugitive to the State from whence he fled and to employ as many persons in doing so as he may deem necessary and the expenses to be paid by the United States.

Now sir having quoted as much of this act as I consider necessary to my purpose let us see how easily it can be adapted to the present condition of affairs and meet the requirements of the loyal men of the South simply by altering the text so as to make its provisions apply to the prevention of outrages against life and property instead of to the catching and rendering up of fugitive slaves. Under its provisions the United States Circuit Courts could appoint as many commissioners as they pleased to appoint in every county in their respective districts and those commissioners could in turn commission as many men as they deemed necessary to execute their warrants would have all the powers of the Circuit or District Judges in term time or vacation could issue their warrants for the arrest of any citizen, and the warrants would be good in any portion of the State could summon every man in the county to assist in serving their processes and if any refused to obey their mandate, could fine and imprison them for so doing could include in that posse comitatus such portion of the United States forces, the army and navy of the United States as might be within the territory over which they exercised jurisdiction and would possess powers more than ample to secure peace and the most perfect protection to life, liberty and property in every State in the Union and the constitutional power of Congress to confer these powers cannot be doubted, for has not the party whose representatives on this floor have so often asserted as of their devotion to the Constitution, stamped the seal of approval on all its provisions, enacted into law all its principles and enforced and maintained that law by all the machinery of the Government. And the Democratic party, having enacted this law and sustained its constitutionality before the adoption of the amendments to the Constitution which have certainly conferred some new powers upon Congress cannot, I presume will not attempt to question its constitutionality now.

It was good Democratic constitutional law to empower an ill minded number of comparatively irresponsible United States Marshals to use the army and navy of the United States to enforce United States laws when those laws were in the interest of the Democratic party and now sir we witness the remarkable spectacle of the party which conferred such powers on these men with no pretension of injury to State governments—with no fears as to the destruction of any of our liberties—with no doubt but their entire constitutionality—now boldly denying that the Congress has any constitutional right to give the President of the United States power to use the army and navy of which he is the constitutional commander in chief, in protecting American citizens from outrage and death the party who under the fugitive slave law, marched United States soldiers over the very spot where the first martyr for American liberty shed his blood—and the blood of Christopher Attucks was as red as yours or mine sir, though his skin was black.

The party who sent their troops over the spot which has martyrdom consecrated to force back into slavery one poor wretch who had succeeded in flying to a land which he supposed to be a land of liberty—the party that did this act dares to tell the American people that there is no constitutional way to use the army and navy of the United States in protecting American citizens from outrage and death unless the Governor and Legislature of the State in which these offences are committed should call for assistance. Sir, I have searched in vain for the call made by the Governor or Legislature of Massachusetts for troops to assist in the rendition of Anthony Burns. Every gentleman on this floor knows that the United States soldiers sent to that State by the Democratic party to assist their blood hounds in tearing from Massachusetts soil that poor, trembling fugitive were not sent there at the request of that State, but by virtue of the law passed by a Democratic Congress enforced by a Democratic administration, and interpreted by a Democratic Attorney General whose interpretation has been sustained by the courts; and I know the American people well enough to know that no legal sophistry can make them believe that it was constitutional to use the army and navy of the United States in returning fugitives to slavery but that no constitutional means can be found to use these agencies for the protection of life, liberty and property of free American citizens in every State in this Union.

Cattle in California.

From the San Francisco Bulletin, May 9.

It is now evident that the rains which may fall after this date will not help the grain crops materially, although the pastures would be freshened, and there would be some augmentation of the hay crop. A large number of cattle and sheep have been driven off to the mountains and we hear that a great number are still moving, in the direction of Nevada. These will be saved, and will augment the resources of our meat markets. But thousands of cattle will be left to take their chances on the dry plains, where even now there is hardly enough feed to keep them from starvation. These, without other care, will die before the next rains season. A great many cattle now in tolerable condition will be sold for slaughter, which in a good season would have been kept over. There will be a material reduction in the number of horned stock in this State during the present year. Next spring look out for high priced cattle. Hay and feed will command high prices, and the extra cost of keeping cattle and horses will then swell the figures. The hay crop in the coast counties, although less than usual, will be increased by the short grain fields which will be cut for hay, and two or three heavy showers during the present month would add materially to the bulk of hay and feed. When the hay harvest is over, we shall find probably a larger yield than is now predicted but partly at the expense of the grain crop. Those who predicted that California would again be overrun with cattle, will find that they have missed the mark. Next spring the stock of cattle in California will be less by some hundreds of thousands than it was a year ago.

The temperance movement in Great Britain has made slow progress, in great part because its advocates had not social position to back up their arguments. The aristocratic Saturday Review is however lending strong aid to the reformers. It does not preach total abstinence but is denouncing, respectable in britain in very plain terms. Not long ago it accused ladies of fashion of tippling, asserting that the practice was on the increase and that hysteria bleared eyes and red noses were the signals of distress that outrage humanity was hanging out. One of the leading medical journals confirmed what the Review had said though characterizing its statements somewhat sensational in style. Even on a red nose doubt by its triumph over the female drunkards the Review has now made an onslaught on the moderate drinker. It says that frequent indulgence in drinking, having business hours in view, and will run many more of persuaded in. It calls for right abstinence until the day's work is over; tells business men that they should have nerve enough to their counting room at last put to walk home and sets forth the necessity of more repose of body and mind. The paper from which we have quoted these comments is not inclined to rash theories or immoralities, therefore the more significant and may be taken as an indication both of the increase of the evil which it deplores and of the clearer perception of the evils which is reaching even the feeble and leery brain of John Bull.

Ben Butler has at last an opportunity to wreak a cherished revenge on Brick Pomeroy. As is well known Brick has for several years selected Butler as the object of his foulest abuse. Now Brick's wife sues him for a divorce, and retains Butler for her counsel. Ben will probably make Pomeroy wish he had let him alone.

CURRENT NOTES.

Memphis this year has received 21,324 bales of cotton more than she did last and has handled over $4 000 000 more money. And yet those lazy niggers are worthless and won't work!

Prince Bismarck is to receive a Parliamentary grant of 1 000 000 thalers in recognition of his services to the country. Generals Moltke, Goeben, Werder and Franseckt will receive grants of 300 000 and 500 000 thalers each. The commanders of the army corps will receive smaller appropriations from the Emperor's private exchequer.

A short time since word was sent to Mr. A. T. Stewart at New York that his woolen mills at Utica had five hundred tons of peal to spare which might be sold to advantage, as the price was high and the article scarce. Word came immediately back to sell with all but as the price is high and the article scarce give away the whole to the working people of the mills, share and share alike. This order was immediately executed.

A Detroit dispatch says: Last night's dispatch from Toronto, referring to the relations of the Michigan Central and Great Western railroads is correct. The roads have been working together and div ding their net earnings since January 1st 0 and have determined to continue the arrangement for twenty years or more. The construction of a tunnel under Detroit river is fully determined upon, and the work will probably be commenced in less than six days.

Mr. Beecher has been trying to get the ladies of Plymouth Church to take part in the prayer meeting. One evening a cadaverous female arose after the usual invitation, and recited a homily of awful length, about nothing in particular. The next evening and the next evening, the horrible infliction was repeated. At the close of the harangue on the third evening, Mr. Beecher lifted up his head which had been buried in his hands and said quietly. Nevertheless, brethren I am in favor of having women speak in the prayer meeting.

A course of instruction in philosophy has been established at Yale embracing two years study under the department of Philosophy and Fine Arts. Prof. Whitney will teach the principles of linguistic science the comparative philology of the Indo European languages and Sanskrit, Profs. Hadley and Packard the more advanced branches of Greek, Prof. Thatcher the Latin branches not included in the regular college course and the Gothic (of Ulfilas) Prof. Coe, the Modern Romance. Prof. Day, the Hebrew and other Semitic branches. Mr. Van Name Chinese and Japanese, and Mr. Lounsberry Anglo Saxon.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Democrats of Ohio are searching for a big howling Copperhead to run for Governor.

Some of the Northern Democratic papers notably the Chicago Times, have expressed their disapproval of Jeff. Davis' "lost cause" speech in Selma, Ala. and the Mobile Register takes them to task for thus abusing him, saying that "it neither hurts Davis nor helps the Democracy."

Mr. W. S. Groesbeck, of Cincinnati appears to be the most progressive of all the Democratic candidates for the Presidency in a recent speech he said "War legislates History is full of its enactments. It has legislated here, its work is fixed, and let us hope ended. We shall not go backward."

The Southern Republicans say that the Ku Klux game now is to keep very quiet until about a month before the Presidential election, and then to scare the colored voters from the polls by a short but effective reign of terror. With this expectation Congress will next winter extend the law over the Presidential election.

The Folsom (Cal.) Telegraph says: The late town elections in California show that the people have had enough of Democratic rule. Stockton increased her Republican majority. Grass Valley, Woodland and Hollister, heretofore strongly Democratic have each for the first time elected a large proportion of the Republican ticket. With good nominees the signs are becoming evident that the Republicans can sweep the State at the fall elections.

A communication to the New York Times says: It is not generally known to the tax payers of this state that the present Democratic Legislature has recently bestowed a fortune upon the clerks of the two Houses. If you will hastily examine Assembly bill No. 851 recently passed and now as the supply bill you will find that the Democratic Clerk of the Assembly, Cornelius W. Armstrong, is to receive of the people's money $19 2,0, while the Democratic Clerk of the Senate, Hiram Calkins, only received $14 665. If the bill is carefully examined other small sums may be found inserted for those unfortunate, overworked gentlemen.

Cow's Milk for Infants.—An English physician, Dr. Selby Norton, has recently been investigating the subject of rearing children by hand and his results are given in the London Lancet Journal, from which we condense the following notes:

Dr. N. says that 90 per cent of the diseases of children fed by hand are due to improper feeding. Mother's milk is the very best food for the infant next to this stands cow's milk properly diluted. So near a perfect substitute is the cow's milk for the mother's milk in chemical composition and adaptability to the infantile stomach, that he deems it a matter of indifference which is used. He utterly discards all the starchy forms of food for infants, that have from time to time been proposed. The milk should be mixed with an equal bulk of water for the first three months of the child's life after this the quantity of water may be gradually lessened, until at six months the proportions are one third water and two thirds milk. From this point to the end of the year the richness of the mixture is gradually increased to one quarter water and three quarters milk but beyond this the quantity of water is never to be diminished.

Among the common mistakes of those who feed cow's milk to infants and which are to be avoided Dr. Norton enumerates boiling the milk, which coagulates the albumen of the milk and renders it indigestible. The same result follows from adding the diluting water when too hot.

Sugar should never be added to the milk. It is a very common custom to sweeten the child's food, but Dr. N. thinks that in interferes with it digestibility. Milk naturally contains a considerable proportion of sugar but this sugar of peculiar kind and cannot be replaced by any ordinary cane sugar. Finally the milk, when fed, should be about as warm as new milk and fresh and good while the greatest care must be taken to keep the feeding bottle clean and free from the slightest taint.

A Blessing in Disguise.—Some Democratic papers are affecting to make out that the defeat in Connecticut a blessing in disguise. They argue that if after their victory in New Hampshire they had carried Connecticut triumphantly instead of by the skin of their teeth in electing the Governor alone the Copperhead and unreconstructed Democrats would have become so rampant that there would have been no holding them rendering an easy victory to the Republicans in 1872 almost certain. In that view of the case the disastrous defeat of the Democrats in Connecticut may be considered a blessing in disguise—but we respectfully suggest that the fewer such blessings the Democratic or any other party has, the better it will be for their political supremacy.—N. Y. Herald.

The Daily Oregonian

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 17, 1871.

General Sherman and the Ku Klux.

The Oregon Herald notes that the "New York Herald of May 2d has the following extract at the head of the editorial column, and it is repeated five times on the editorial page, every letter of which is capitals in each extract":

I probably have as good means of information as most persons in regard to what is called the Ku Klux, and am perfectly satisfied that the thing is ... ly overestimated; and if the Ku Klux bills were kept out of Congress and the army kept at their legitimate duties, there are enough good and true men in all Southern States to put down all Ku Klux or other bands of marauders.—General Sherman.

Our neighbor is always ready to catch up and print forgeries when it thinks they will help its cause. Now be it known that Gen. Sherman has expressly denied that he made the above statements, and, moreover, that he complains of being misrepresented by those who originated and gave publicity to them. A few days after the remarks above attributed to him were said to have been made, he delivered another brief speech at New Orleans, in which he said:

Mr. President—I am not much of a speaker. My forte is action, not speech-making. I do not wish my remarks this evening to be reported in the papers, for I see what I said on the occasion of another reception extended me since my arrival here, entirely misrepresented, and I am credited with words I did not utter at all. Therefore, I hope there are no reporters here to serve the present interview as they served others, to which I have alluded. My duty as Commander of the Army of the ... keeps me employed in military matters, and by that employment I may be enabled to assist the nation in civil and political ... ; but I do not wish to be considered a politician. I strive as well as I can to do ... official duty compels, and in doing that, and myself employed. I do not seek any civil position whatever, and I do not wish to be suspected of it. Indeed, I should ... decline any offer of a civil or political ... tion. I mean to devote my whole ... the future to a study of military art—... a view of destroying, but as a means ... moting the good of all, even the lowest ... of our country.

Since the Oregon Herald has printed a false report of Gen. Sherman's speech, will it have the fairness to print these subsequent remarks by him, in which he corrects the misrepresentation and sets himself right? We shall see.

The Contest in California.

Four years ago the Republican party in California was beaten by the mismanagement and trickery of its leaders. Men who were odious to a large part of the Republican voters thrust themselves on the party as candidates; a division of the party followed and the opposition carried the State. This year there seems to be general harmony in the party, and the prospect for a Republican triumph in September next is believed to be good. The Sacramento Union, which is usually good authority, deems the prospect quite encouraging. That paper advocates the nomination of Newton Booth for Governor, and says the interior counties are a unit for him. It declares that he "has no rival among the masses of the party," and adds:

The effect of this general and almost unanimous adoption of a candidate of so much honor and intelligence, of one so sound as Booth is on every question of [illegible] policy, whose sympathies all his life have been with the common people and with the cause of justice at home and in Europe, has been excellent. It restores the party here to confidence once more in spite of the past and of causes elsewhere operating against it. Among the sure signs of this returning confidence are the municipal elections; in the increased Republican majority at Stockton; in the vote of Woodland; in the decisive victory at Sacramento; in the defeat of the Democracy at Grass Valley, where there has been no Republican triumph for years before. California has been a Republican State ever since the memorable triangular campaign of 1861. On a close contest, with candidates of equal honesty on both sides, and with national issues before us exclusively, it is our most conviction that the Republicans can carry the State by a handsome majority.

The Union seldom errs in its judgment upon such matters as this. Probably the Democrats will re-nominate Gov. Haight, who will be supported by nearly the full strength of his party. A contest between him and Booth would be a fair trial of the strength of the two parties in the State. From the general tone of the Republican press of California we judge there is good reason to hope for a Republican victory. An earnest campaign on the part of the Republicans and the perfect unity which it is expected will be secured in the ranks of the party throughout the contest, will, it is believed, retrieve the fault of the last general election.

The staunch Democratic journals of the South have but scant respect for Democrats who talk about burying "dead issues." One of these papers considers that "if the Democracy when they come into power are to continue the unconstitutional legislation of the present Republican party, and accept, as realities, all of its pretended decisions, then it might as well save the expense of our party organization, repeal our election laws, and make Grant emperor at once." It congratulates the party that the Democratic members of Congress struck out of their address the declaration that the party has no desire to interfere with the constitutional amendments, and thinks if it has no such desire the country may as well remain under control of Republicans.

The President of the United States has appointed the following persons to act as Commissioners under section one of the act of March 3d, to provide for celebrating the 100th anniversary of American independence in the city of Philadelphia: Asa Packer and Daniel J. Morell of Pennsylvania, D. M. Boyd, jr., and John L. Campbell of Indiana, Solomon L. Spink and George A. Batchelder of Dakota, E. D. Holton and David Atwood of Wisconsin. The act provides for the appointment of two gentlemen from each State and Territory, to be made upon the recommendation of the Governor thereof to the President. The above comprise all the nominations that have been received by the press to the present time.

We have not yet heard of the commencement of hostilities in Connecticut, though the Democratic papers of that State threatened civil war in case English were not allowed the benefit of the fraud attempted by his party, and inaugurated as Governor.

The "organ," it is observed, has still another leading editorial in defense of the $75,000 swindle in the matter of the canal and locks. In the name of patience has it not done enough dirty work for that $500?

A Democratic contemporary is of opinion that the United States is a "confederacy of independent States." Jeff. Davis agrees with it on this point, but would not, if he had been hanged.

The population of the four greatest States is as follows: New York, 4,374,763; Pennsylvania, 3,529,601; Ohio, 2,665,012; Illinois, 2,538,408.

OREGON.

The Daily Mercury of Salem has suspended publication.

Crop prospects in Washington county are splendid, and feed is high.

Congressman Slater was to have arrived at home, at La Grande on Monday.

A nugget of gold weighing four pounds was picked up in Baker county a few days ago.

A ledge called the Oro Fino has been discovered in the mining district of Eagle Creek, in Union county, which yields rock worth $1,000 a ton.

The Grand Jury of Washington county has ignored the bill against Wm. Blanchard, charged with assault with intent to commit a rape, etc. Its action is universally approved. ... The trial of Westfall, defaulting County Treasurer, will take place to-day (Wednesday).

From the Statesman: Mr. George F. Holman, Secretary of the Pioneer Oil Company, informs us that there was sown this spring, in Lane and Linn counties, 3,200 acres of flax seed, from which it is expected 30,000 bushels of seed will be realized, all of which is engaged by the oil company of this city.

The Salem Statesman learns that the damage by the fire at the Ellendale Mill is put down by the company at $20,000; the insurance was $10,000, leaving the company to sustain a loss of $10,000. The original cost was $30,000. There was very little material in the mill at the time, so the loss was confined to the building and machinery. The company will have a meeting on Monday night next, but will probably do nothing towards rebuilding the mill at present.

The National Labor Union on the Tariff.

There are those among us who make a great show of devotion to the labor interests of the country. And it so happens that these persons are generally noisy advocates of free trade. They cannot endure to hear of a policy which gives encouragement to home products, employment to labor at living wages, and development of home resources. But the National Labor Union understands this subject better. The working men of the country know better what they desire in this direction than those demagogues who pretend great devotion to their interests can know. On this point we quote from the platform of the National Labor Union:

WHEREAS, The American people are compelled annually to pay taxes amounting to over $300,000,000 for the support of the Government, and to meet the interest on a debt incurred to suppress a wicked rebellion; and, whereas, their ability to bear this enormous annual burden without absolute ruin must depend upon the diversity of labor, the development of our national resources, and the general prosperity of the laboring classes; and, whereas, this diversity, development, and prosperity can in no way be so effectually promoted and so permanently secured as by such legislation as shall protect our laboring, mechanical, and manufacturing interests against foreign competition, and at the same time create a home market for our agricultural products; therefore,

Resolved, That we believe a Protective Tariff both a financial and an industrial necessity in the present condition of the country, and that it is demanded by every consideration of justice, wisdom, and humanity.

A Little Gratuitous Advice.

Advice is usually reckoned as among the cheapest of all commodities. It may be quite unlike mercy, of which it is said by a high authority that it "blesses him that gives and him that takes." Nevertheless most people are very forward to give advice, and many readily take it who afterwards wish they hadn't. What we have to offer in this line at present is a word to those people in Portland, both new-comers and others, who have nothing to do. Get off to the country!! Go up the Willamet valley; go east of the Cascade mountains; go to Washington Territory; avoid the towns and seek the country, where cheap and wholesome subsistence may be had, and where there is always chance to get some kind of employment. In a new country like this there is always enough to do, but everybody can't find it in the towns. There are few industries in Portland; it is simply a place where the products of industry are exchanged. A man who is out of employment and wants to find it, had better go where it can surely be obtained.

The Herald attempts to praise the financial management of its party in the city of New York! It seems to think it a remarkable achievement to have increased the debt of that city from $42,265,000 in 1866, to $82,057,000 in 1871, besides the loans now authorized which will augment the debt by the further sum of $16,000,000, making an aggregate of nearly $100,000,000, or more than $100 to each inhabitant of the city,—a debt just about twice as large per capita as the debt of the United States. Salaries of Democratic officials in that city are larger than the salaries of the highest officers under the General Government, and every year offices and salaries in the city of New York are increased and multiplied. That is the way they do it in New York. That is the sort of "economy" that is commended to us by the example and practice of the Democratic party.

It is remarked that the Democratic address ought to be satisfactory to the members of that party, whether they live North or South. It is one of those happy productions of genius which, chameleon like, shows a different shade according to the position from which they are viewed. Its generalities are construed for the Northern taste to be utterances of patriotism and loyalty to the Union, while at the South they are interpreted to be dyed-in-the-wool expressions of belief in State rights and other absurd pretensions of the lost cause, which the sons of chivalry hope to discover when they see again one of their Democratic allies in the place now filled by the incorruptible soldier who crushed the hollow shell of slavery's power.

The Second Quarter of Lessons in Classes commences with the present week. It affords us great pleasure to acknowledge the substantial support of so large a number of patrons. We take pride in subjoining the following testimonial from one of the ablest educators in America, together with that of the entire corps of Normal Teachers with whom we had the great honor to labor.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, FIRST STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, WINONA, April 18, 1871.

It affords me great pleasure to bear testimony to the high personal and professional qualities of Professor J. H. McIlhenny, who for two years presided with entire acceptance over the Department of Vocal and Physical Culture in this institution. To a thorough knowledge of the philosophy of Calisthenics and Vocal training possessed by but few, he unparalds an enthusiastic devotion to his profession, and an industry surpassed by none. With an experience of more than a quarter of a century in the Normal Schools of this country, in whose courses of study Vocal Music has occupied a prominent position, I do not hesitate to say that I have never met with the peer of Professor McIlhenny as an instructor in this department.

I commend him and his excellent wife, who also possesses rare powers as a teacher and musician, to the confidence of all who can appreciate the value of a true and pastoral mode of culture for the children and youth of our country. WM. F. PHELPS, Principal.

I heartily concur in the above.

C. C. CURTISS, Dep't of Accounts.

The undersigned Teachers in the First State Normal School of Minnesota, also concur in the foregoing testimonial of Professor Phelps. MARY V. LEE,
BELL V. THOMPSON,
EUGENIA A. WHEELER,
CHRISTENE H. GILLET,
A. J. FARBER.

RESOLUTIONS

Resolved, That Real Estate Agents, having in trusted to them the most important interests of both seller and purchaser, and as, in all transactions they should aim to act in strict justice to both parties, it is therefore important that the condition of title should be thoroughly understood by the agents and clearly stated to the purchaser

Resolved, That, it being the unanimous opinion of all real estate agents that owners of real estate lessen the value of their property and render it more difficult of sale, by placing the same in the hands of more than one agent in the same locality, therefore, no member of this Board shall knowingly place on his list for sale any property already on the list and under the control of another member of the Board, without such member's consent

Resolved, That, unless there is a special contract when a principal, after placing property in an agent's hands for sale, shall sell the same himself, to any party to whom the agent has not recommended the same, the agent shall be entitled to one-half the usual commission if sale was made during continuance of contract

Resolved, That if a principal sells the property for a less price than he instructs the agent to sell for, then, in such case, full commission shall be paid to the agent on amount of sale

Resolved, That an agent negotiating a sale of property according to contract, and the principal failing to convey the same, the agent shall use all means in his power, according to law, to complete the negotiation, failing in which full commission shall be paid

Resolved, That when an agent is employed to purchase property for a person, and shall make a contract in accordance with his instructions therefor, and said purchaser shall fail to complete the purchase then the agent shall be entitled to full commission from said proposed purchaser

Resolved That in all cases, agents undertaking the sale of property are bound to adhere strictly to the conditions of their contracts, and are equally bound to insist that the contract shall be strictly complied with by the other party; contracts should be in writing, expressing the conditions of the contract, should be signed by the seller or his authorized agent.

Resolved, That when one member of this Board places in the hands of another member property for sale, and no special agreement is made, the gross commissions shall be equally divided

GIVE THEM A JOB.—If anybody will take the trouble to go among the men who crowd about the hotels or walk about the streets and wharves, he will probably have occasion to be surprised at the very large numbers among them who have neither money nor employment We do not mean among the class who are best designated as "bummers"—that class are always idle and always flat broke—but those who have come here to better their fortunes and who would work if they could find work to do They are laboring men who have drifted out here with the tide of immigration expecting to find immediate employment They did not understand, when they left home, that the employments of this new country were so few and that they might have to "rustle" for even their food There are many in this city to day who would be glad to get even as small a job as the sawing of a cord of wood for half a dollar Most of those who get out into the interior and find something to do, and once acquainted with the country they will do well enough, if they have any enterprise But many new arrivals are at a loss where to go or what to try, and these we find going about the city trying to find work This is a condition of things to be naturally expected upon the accession of a considerable and sudden influx of people These same men are to become of vast benefit to the country if they can be sustained and kept here Hence, it is not only our duty but our interest to help them to a start Work should be given every possible case to those who want to work A job will generally prove a better relief than a donation of money. Those who ask for money are not in all cases worthy of it, but as a general thing the man who asks for work is of the right stuff and may be helped without much risk of the employer being billed There are but few of our old citizens who could not give an applicant for work a job for a day or two, at least To a strange or and destitute man such help would be most valuable. It would not only relieve his present necessities but give him heart and courage for the future It will not do to say we do not want this sort of population We invite immigration, but we cannot expect to get only such as have means to live on and to invest in business Among immigrants to any country there are always some who will arrive destitute While we welcome the forehanded we must also assist this latter class Let every man consider seriously what is his duty and his interest in common with the rest of the people, in the present state of facts, and, above all, let every man act as though he still recognised the common bond of humanity

FOR THE JOHN DAY VALLEY.—On Monday Messrs Vandyne and Somerville, of Independence, Polk county, shipped up the Columbia three hundred head of young cattle and a lot of horses, intending to place them on a ranch in the John Day valley The cattle movement in the direction of Eastern Oregon is attaining to very important proportions Already many thousands mostly young cattle, have been driven from this valley to the fine grazing regions of Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory If this changing of base continues throughout the season, there will be a question of beef between the east and west side within a year or two

SOME CONSOLATION, AFTER ALL.—The man who was very certain two weeks ago that Oregon was to be burnt up this year with drouth is now equally certain that the State will be ruined by the rains Hence he is croaking his dismal "I told you so," again We fear his nerves cannot be soothed by any contrivance It may be as well, however, to say that the best crops Oregon has produced have followed when the rains continued late in the season The present weather is making wealth for the State

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICE.—Divine Service with the administration of the Holy Communion may be expected on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Stephen's Chapel, Madison street near Fourth, that day being Ascension Day Seats free

There will be service in the Unitarian Church this evening, conducted by the Rev. Mr Kimball

NEW YORK CIRCUS.—The New York Circus is now so far prepared in its organization as to announce the opening of the season The first performance will take place in this city, next Wednesday, the 24th inst., to be followed by performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, with a matinee Saturday afternoon Read the advertisement

U S CIRCUIT COURT.—SAWYER, DEADY, J. J.—John R Lamb et al vs George W Vaughn et al, the day (yesterday) consumed in argument. Same counsel as before

Theodore Burmeister was admitted to the bar The court adjourned till 10 A M to day.

WHARF REPAIRS.—The snubbing and fender piles along the front of Couch & Flander's dock having been mostly broken away, the pile driver of the O & C Railroad Co was engaged yesterday in driving new ones of very substantial size.

GENERALLY PREVALENT.—We hear that the late rainstorm has prevailed throughout all of western Oregon and the northern part of California It has rained also at the Dalles, and perhaps further east.

WRIT OF REVIEW.—The case of the State of Oregon vs L & F Pfunder, upon writ of review, will be heard on the 22d of May, on application of defendant, Pfunder

NOTARY PUBLIC.—Chas L Illsley, of this city, and of the real estate firm of Conklin Illsley & Co has been appointed a Notary Public for Multnomah county

Evening Words

Co ne kneel by my knee little children,
Too weary for laughter or song
Th sports of the day are all over,
And even ng s creeping along.
The snowfields are white on the moonlight
The winds in the winter are chill,
But under the sheltering roof-tree
The fire shineth ruddy and still

You sit by the fire little children
Your cheeks are ruddy and warm
But out in the cold of the winter
Is many a shivering form
There are mothers that wander for shelter,
And babes that are pining for bread
Oh thank the dear Lord little children
From whose tender hand you are fed

Come look in my eyes little children
And tell me through all the long day
Have you thought of the Father above us
Who guarded from evil your way
His heareth the cry of the sparrow
And careth for great and for small,
In life and in death little children
His love is the truest of all

Now go to your rest, little children,
And over your innocent sleep
Unseen by your vision, the angels
Their watch through the darkness shall keep
Then pray that the Shepherd who guideth
The lambs that he loveth so well
May lead you in life a rosy morning,
Beside the still waters to dwell

Rulloff the Learned Murderer.

HIS INTERVIEW WITH PROFESSOR MATHER, OF AMHERST COLLEGE

Professor Mather, of Amherst College, gives the Springfield Republican the following account of a visit to the murderer Rulloff in his cell

The visit was not of idle curiosity, for one of my colleagues in the college had shown me, some months since, a criticism of Rulloff—written years ago, when he was in the State Prison at Auburn, New York, upon parts of Professor Taylor Lewis' edition of one of Plato's dialogues which had warmly interested me in his scholarship

The next morning, about nine o clock, the locate and I went down to the prison, and a gentlemanly high Sheriff at once consented to the interview, if Rulloff was willing. The doomed man at first refused as he had also late to all visitors, but when told that I was a student and teacher of Greek he at consented. He approached the heavy iron door and asked, very politely, if I could remain long enough to learn some thing of the beauties of his theory of language Without replying I turned to the officer and asked if I might be permitted to go into the cell He said yes and proceeded to unlock the massive doors It was furnished with chairs of the ordinary narrow grandmother pattern, but was As we entered Rulloff approached with dilapidated chairs, and with the most winning courtesy asked us to be seated and offered to relieve me of my hat He sat down upon his rude pallet opposite me, and I told him what I had seen the criticism referred to above, that I had desired to learn how he had gained his knowledge of the old languages He replied with a smile, that he had obtained it by honest work, that he had never been to college or university, but that from boy hood a most intense interest in the study of the Greek tongue He knew that he had been laughed at by many as a superficial scholar, and want on to say that by diligently myself on that, and then hear me read to say about the formation of the Greek I replied that as we had not text book to examine him, to which he replied that many of the classical authors he knew by heart and would try and repeat portions of any one I might suggest where he should be sure to find something that would be appropriate to the present needs I suggested the third chapter, first book of the Memorabilia of Xenophon, in which the conversations of Socrates with reference to piety and duty in their purity and simplicity are nearly to Biblical reference as any other parts of the same work as the iliad of Homer as some of the plays of Sophocles, are showed great familiarity with Then in order to test his thoroughness, he criticised the pronunciation during of certain passages, and he betrayed such subtlety and discrimination in the use of accents as to show that his critical powers of memory, in fact, in the very way that subtlety of analysis and of memory are marked characteristics of a few or two passages of Homer, particularly he showed great acuteness of criticism and a most thorough appreciation of the grammatical sentiment. One or two passages I read at Felton he opposed most vigorously and when I supported the common reading he quoted from a vast range of language I can not enter upon the subtle for the general read in a way unusual, is quite contrary to the established views upon comparative philology, and I suppose will never be of any practical use Most persons think him a monomaniac in this and certainly his enthusiasm is remarkable He sat there in his chains, as I understood by the highest court to die on the and without a word, or apparent thought about his doom, he argued and insisted on his favorite theory as though he were arguing for his life and was determined to convince

He was anxious to have philologists examine the manuscript of his works He urged me to confer with several men and take time to consider his theory is true He asked me if the apparent dogmatism of the style did not offend and he felt convinced that his language was a special revelation to him and that perhaps a hundred years might elapse ere it could be known again and then he replied significantly, "And you know that what I say must be done quickly"

In person this strange man is about middle height, robust build, and his apparently strong vitality years of age, not at all the broken old man he has been represented He has a singular face, not villainous or grossly sensual nor is it scholarly The features are strongly marked and full of sinister meaning There is a line that you could not forget and yet would not care to think about His eye, which is dark hazel, I had heard was the striking feature but it did not impress me so, perhaps because it showed trouble and suffering The bad lines in his face to me were about his chin and forehead, and his neck is very short and stout and heavy

His manners he is very urbane and natural, and he converses with great facility and elegance His voice is mellow and pleasant, and occasionally showed tones of tenderness But for what I do not believe the man has any tenderness save for language In looking at you would never imagine him as loving man being and you would be sure that his hatred would be implacable. He is entirely without pity, and offers in himself a powerful argument against the theory that education is sufficient to lead to true man Those who would throw out moral teaching from our system of culture a difficult task to harmonize their with such a character as this Here is a profound and appreciative student of all the beautiful and glorious in classical learning, working for years as a philologist, with a zeal rarely equaled and yet all the while living a life of crime as dark and terrible as any criminal in our land He shows that true culture and true manhood can only be by a development of the moral sense, and that we must educate the heart as fast as we educate the head, or our knowledge may only increase our sin

The Upland Cranberry

Within a few past years the cranberry plant has been successfully cultivated on uplands Perhaps it may not produce as heavy a crop on dry soil as on wet, still it is made to yield large crops on sandy loam—soils that will produce good crops of potatoes or oats. B M Watson, of the Plymouth (Mass.) nurseries, states that last season on dry, sandy, loam soil the yield with him was more than four hundred bushels to the acre The fruit on upland, he states is larger, darker colored, more solid, and of better quality than on wet lands It ripens earlier, and is in no danger of being cut off by the frosts.

The practice of growing cranberry fruit in gardens in England has continued for more than 200 years A correspondent of the Gardeners Chronicle says his cranberry garden is on a piece of land which was originally covered with hemlock, maple, and beech trees, after being cleared, the natural growth was sorrel, June grass and white clover He plowed the ground deep, bringing to the surface as much subsoil as he could His crops were good

A writer in the Rural Home says his crop, grown on loam, was at the rate of 458 bushels to the acre Other statements in agricultural papers show that the cultivation of this plant is rapidly extending.

The preparation of the ground must be thorough, deeply plowed, and pulverized The plants can be set in April, May, and June, and in October and November The plants should be set in double rows, six inches apart, and a space of three feet left between the double rows These can be kept clear of weeds by the horse hoe In a year or two the ground will be covered by the vines, when further cultivation will be unnecessary

Propagation of the plants is done by layering in August Cover the growing vines with earth, and the next spring these will make new and good plants

The fruit is gathered with a rake, or by the hand Children can earn fifty and seventy five cents a day by gathering them at one cent a quart Fine cranberries, at wholesale, would be cheap in Oregon at three dollars per bushel When the grounds are well set in plants, four hundred or more bushels to the acre is not an extraordinary crop. Each square rod will require about 1,000 plants There is money in this business, but it will call for patience and labor before their large crops can be secured And what good thing can be had without patience and labor?

B M Watson, of the Old Colony Nurseries—an old establishment of high reputation—advertises upland cranberry plants at one dollar per hundred, ten dollars per thousand Sent by mail and prepaid, two dollars per hundred. These roots will be packed with great care so that they will go with safety to any part of the continent.

A CURIOUS SCENE IN A GERMAN VILLAGE.—In the old German town of Halberstadt there was a curious scene when the people turned out to welcome the return of their troops from France A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser describes it

The railroad station, as well as every house in the town, was literally covered with garlands and flags, interlaced with wreaths and colors, so that scarcely a trace of the building itself was to be seen The street leading to the town was an avenue of gayly-waving colors, and at the entrance a triumphal arch was erected The soldiers were received by a procession of the citizens, representing the different trades societies and corporations An address of welcome was delivered by the chief justice, and a young lady, the Flora of the occasion, after decking the regimental standard with a wreath of ivy, greeted the commander, and then placed another upon his head. The procession then started for the town headed by the soldiers, who in their white uniform, with shining helmets and breast-plates and polished lances and swords, presented a most brilliant appearance Behind them were the officers and magistrates on horseback; then followed in a large wagon drawn by four horses, Gambrinus I, the beer king, seated on an immense cask, on his head a crown, in one hand a sceptre, in the other a huge glass, while round him were his attendants drawing the beer Next came the tobacco wagon, decorated with cigars and pipes and tobacco plants, in which were men dressed as Indians, smoking These two necessaries of life to a German were followed by the gardener's wagon, loaded with flowers and bouquets, and in the centre, under a canopy, was seated the Flora before mentioned

Then came the baker and confectioners, the cabinet makers, carrying poles on which were fastened various articles of furniture in miniature, and dangling from the tops as long shavings as each one had been able to make. The butchers followed on horseback. The latter had made an emblem of their profession of colossal dimensions, on which was inscribed the idea that at last Germany was united under one hat. There is a German proverb that no one can be a tailor who weighs more than seven pounds and needed no banner with inscription to distinguish this class, for a leaner set of men than the German tailors universally are it would be hard to find. And so the procession moved on. Shoemakers with an enormous boot, chimney-sweeps in velvet, machinists with miniature engines, carpenters with tools, garlanded oxen men women, and children from all the towns and villages for miles around, till at last it halted in the cathedral square, amid the ringing of bells and the thunder of cannon

Lord Campbell, an English judge, married Baroness Strathenon, who always carried her own name. This once caused a curious misapprehension. During an official journey with her husband, she once slept at lodgings which he had frequently occupied when he was upon the circuit The next morning the landlady sought him and thus expostulated "Sir John, I am a lone widow, and live by my good name It is not in my humble place to be too curious about the ladies brought to my lodgings by my patrons It is not in me to make remarks if a counsellor's lady changes her complexion and the color of her eyes every assizes But, Sir John, a gentleman ought not to bring a lady to a lone widow's lodgings, unless, so long as he occupies the apartments he makes all honorable professions that the lady is his wife, and, as such, gives her the use of his name"

SALTING BUTTER.—From an article on butter making in one of our agricultural exchanges we extract the following

How should butter be put down? Sprinkle the package with salt, and then press the butter firmly, but not pound it, as that will break the grain When the package is full, spread a cloth wet in brine over it and put about an inch of salt on it, and cover with brine, and see that it is kept covered Butter that is properly manufactured, and put down, may be kept perfectly sweet for years

KINGS OUT OF BUSINESS.—The following is a list of dispossessed sovereigns still living Prince Gustavus Vasa, of Sweden (1809), Comte de Chambord (1830), Duke Charles of Brunswick (1830), Comte de Paris (1818) Duke Robert, of Parma (1859); Grand Duke Ferdinand, of Tuscany (1860), Duke Francis II, King of Naples (1861); the widow of King Otho, of Greece (1862), Duke Adolphus, of Nassau (1867), Empress Charlotte, of Mexico (1867), Isabella, Queen of Spain (1869), Emperor Napoleon (1870).
